INNOCENT BYSTANDER SLASHED

While Standing in the Crowd as a Mere Spectator Waukeganite is Injured

THROAT CUT BY FOREIGNER

Mike Rectenwald Has Fourteen Stitches Taken in His Throat, but no Bad Results are Expected

While standing in the crowd as a mere spectator, Mike Rectenwald of the south side, Waukegan, was slashed on the neck by a foreigner at 2:45 Sunday morning at the Merchant's corner, Genesee and Belvidere streets, and had the gash extended about a half inch to one side, his jugular vein would have been severed.

As it was, his neck was cut to such an extent that fourteen stitches were necessary to close the wound.

Frank Mears, also a well known man, received slight cuts on his body and his clothes were hacked in several places.

He, like Rectenwald, had nothing to do with the fight which had ensued a few minutes before but explain they were standing on the corner when some of the crowd had been fighting, started after them with knives and began cutting right and left.

A crowd of a half dozen or more foreigners were walking south on Genesee street at the above hour when Officer Matt Stalar told them they must cease their noise and make their way home. They got noisier and noisier as they neared the corner and he warned them several times but, when they reached Merchant's corner, instead of going on, they got to fighting among themselves and the officer then waded into the bunch.

He called for help from a crowd of other men who had been passing toward their homes and Jack Kilbane came to his aid. They each grabbed one of the men and the others in the crowd then turned on the officer and his assistant who had all they could do to get their prisoners away. They officer received a bad blow or kick in the thigh.

The men they arrested were Walter Tornvill and R. Lindquist. They were taken to jail and it was after they had left that the stabbing took place.

Rectenwald and Mears had been standing nearby when the trouble was on but they had taken no part in the affair. However, after the officer had left, evidently believing they were companions of the man who had gone to help the officer, the foreigners started at them and before they could get away they had been cut.

The man who went after Rectenwald was the most vicious and the alash he gave him in the neck was one of the worst that any man has received in a long time and yet lived. Rectenwald was so taken by surprise that he could not defend himself and Mears, too, was taken unawares. A man named Barrett, also a companion, had his clothes cut but was unhurt otherwise.

The officers from headquarters were then notified and later in the morning three more arrests were made, these men being taken to the station.

These men denied they were the ones who had slashed the two men, but the officer declared they knew them to have been in the crowd which started the trouble and they were held in $1,000 bonds each on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

HORSE THIEF TRACED TO WADSWORTH

Sheriff Wm. H. Gunter of Kenosha County spent Sunday in an endeavor to get trace of a stranger who stole a horse from Jim Torrey on the Senator Stephenson farm, six miles west of Kenosha.

The theft occurred in the neighborhood of one o'clock Sunday morning and was discovered a few hours later, and the farmer and officers immediately started upon the trail. He was traced to Wadsworth, Lake County, and there the officers were thrown off the track. It later developed that from Wadsworth the thief took a round about way to Russell.

The thief entered the barn and hitched the horse to a fine runabout and it was by means of the rubber tire rig and the mud that he was traced as far as Wadsworth.

OLD RESIDENT PASSES

Grandma Hall of Hickory Passes Away at Age of 95 Years

Sunday morning of last week at the hour of 5 o'clock another one of Lake county's oldest and most highly respected residents gave up the struggle of life and passed into the great beyond, when Grandma Hall, as she was generally known, peacefully passed away at her home at Hickory. Her illness was of only a few weeks' duration, although she had been gradually growing feeble with the advance of years for a long time and her death was caused by a general breaking down of the entire system due to the infirmities of age.

Miss Samanta Norton, was born in New York state on the 11th day of April, 1815, and passed away at her late home on the 22th day of May, 1910, at the advanced age of 95 years, 1 month and 11 days.

She had resided upon her farm at Hickory continuously for 67 years with the exception of a time years ago when she spent three years at Salem, but returned to spend the remainder of her days upon the place which for years she had called home.

She was the youngest of a family of fourteen children and was the last member of the family, the others having preceded her to the valley of death years ago.

She was first united in marriage to Mr. Hall and after having been left a widow for a number of years she was again married and although by this marriage her name was changed to Hoskins, she was commonly known as Grandma Hall to the time of her death. Her second husband also preceded her to the land of rest many years ago.

She was an earnest, Christian worker and the first religious meeting ever held in Hickory was at her home and it was mainly through her untiring efforts and generous aid that the Hickory M. E. church was organized, and she has ever been one of its most devoted members, who as long as her health permitted did all in her power for its welfare and maintenance. She has effectively filled the various offices of the church and by her life has plainly exemplified the christian virtues of Faith, Hope and Charity.

By her death the community has lost one of its most beloved residents and the church its most ardent and sincere worshiper.

Of six children born to her only two survive, Miss Jennie Hall of Hickory, and Mrs. Hoskins of Emporia, Kansas. She is also survived by eight grand children, four great grand children and two great-great grand children.

The funeral was held at the Hickory church Tuesday forenoon and the burial was in the Hickory cemetery. The large concourse of friends which attended and the number of beautiful floral tokens showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held by all who knew her.

The deceased was a grandmother of Mrs. Martin Sorensen of this place and Mrs. H. S. O'Brien of Fond du Lac, Wis.

ELMER BROOK MARRIED IN CHICAGO

Stealing a march on his many Antioch friends, Elmer Brook quietly slipped away to Chicago on Tuesday last, where he was united in marriage to the lady of his choice, Miss Nina McClellan of that city being the bride.

Mr. Brook is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brook of Burlington, and has held a position in the Bank of Antioch for some time. He has many friends among the young people of this village who are waiting to give him and his bride a warm welcome upon their return.

Details of the wedding are not obtainable, but it is stated that Mr. and Mrs. Brook will make their future home in Antioch.

BOB WYNN SECURES AID FOR FOX LAKE ROAD

Robert D. Wynn has been successful in his efforts to interest southern capital in the purchase of the Fox Lake line and the extension of the road into the lake region of the county. Mr. Wynn has entered into an arrangement to assist officials of the Southern Traction Company in the promotion and extension of their interests and they have agreed to come to Waukegan later and assist in acquiring and extending the Fox Lake line. Mr. Wynn is entirely satisfied with the arrangement and states that the officials of the Southern Traction Company of St. Louis are strong financially and that better backing for his favorite project could not have been secured. Wynn will leave again for St. Louis later this week and begin his new duties there.

ARRESTED ON GRAVE CHARGE

Highwood Postmaster Bound Over for Alleged Shortage in Accounts

SAID TO BE SHORT $300.00

Arrest Followed an Investigation by U. S. Postal Inspector—Hints at Political Plot

William E. Cummings, postmaster at Highwood, was placed under arrest late Tuesday afternoon following a report that he is short between $400 and $500 in his accounts and as the results of an investigation by United States government postal inspectors.

He waived preliminary examination before United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote and towards evening was bound over to await the action of the federal grand jury in the sum of $2,000.

The inspector came to the Highwood office Tuesday afternoon to check up the accounts. He claimed at the end that there was a shortage of $290. He then refused, it is said, to accept checks to the amount of $200 with the claim that under the postal regulations he could not accept them as currency. Within ten or fifteen minutes Postmaster Cummings tendered him $300 in cash, he claimed, in an interview with the assertion that the inspector refused to accept this also.

The inspector asked him, he claims, if he would willingly accompany him to Chicago and he consented to do this. The inspector is still engaged in his checking work and refused to issue any statement until he had completed his examination. When Postmaster Cummings was asked whether or not he had been made the victim of a political plot, he intimated that this might have been the case.

When asked to fix the responsibility for the shortage he stated that he preferred to make no statement until later.

He is engaged in a teaming business and also buys and sells horses. His general reputation is considered good and his friends were greatly surprised to hear of the action of the federal authorities. It is the general rule in all post offices not to accept checks, it is said, and leniency on the part of the postmaster may be responsible for his present difficulty, it is reported. The report concerning his arrest created wide surprise in Highwood and Highland Park.

RENDERS $4,000 VERDICT

Estate of Wm. Barnstable Wins Suit Against Soo Line.

The jury which heard the case of the estate of W. G. Barnstable vs. the Soo Line Railroad, the old Wisconsin Central, last week brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff and allowed damages to the amount of $4,000.

As will be remembered Mr. Barnstable met his death in a most horrible manner, on the evening of April 22, 1910, while crossing the Soo Line track near his home in Lake Villa, by being backed down upon by a north bound freight just after he had stepped aside to let a south bound freight pass by. Mrs. Barnstable who was with him at the time, narrowly escaped meeting the same fate.

A suit for damages to the amount of ten thousand dollars was brought by Mrs. Barnstable through Attorney White of Waukegan, executor of the estate. The hearing was set for last week and occupied the greater part of two days, Tuesday and Wednesday, and resulted in the jury allowing the sum of four thousand dollars.

The case has attracted considerable attention and was of wide spread interest on account of the prominence of the parties involved and its progress as well as its outcome has been watched with keen interest by the people of this vicinity. L. H. Rogers, of this place, an eye witness of the fatality was one of the chief witnesses at the trial, and J. C. James, also of Antioch, was also called upon to testify in the capacity of official weather recorder. Both of these gentlemen together with many other witnesses were present at the trial both days.

The verdict is considered by the attorneys as a fair one and it is not likely that an appeal will be taken.

$10,000 CAMPAIGN FUND AID

Representative of State Anti-Saloon League Interviews Candidates

CORPORATIONS TO ASSIST

Heads of Corporations of Waukegan Said to be in Favor of Abolishing Saloons and Give to Aid Campaign

That a representative of the Anti-Saloon League was in Waukegan Tuesday interviewing candidates for the legislature as to their views on the saloon question and their stand in regard to local option, is the claim of a candidate who claims to have been seen by the league's agent. It is also a fact that the heads of corporations were seen by the agent and that contributions to a $10,000 campaign fund were secured in Waukegan and North Chicago.

The head of one of the largest corporations which is represented in Waukegan stated to a reporter that he had made a substantial contribution to the campaign fund and it was the policy of his corporation to aid in every way possible toward the abolishment of the saloon. "I know of three or four other Waukegan corporations who endorse the work of the Anti-Saloon League and who have contributed to the campaign fund now being raised," said the gentleman in question.

It is said to be the policy of the League to ascertain the position of the candidates on the local option and temperance questions and then to endorse one candidate from both the republican and democratic parties in each legislative district. The league has workers out in all portions of the state who are engaged in soliciting campaign contributions and assisting in organizing the townships and counties for the coming elections.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE IN JAIL

Young Tramp Cuts Wrists and Ankles in Efforts to End Life

Discouraged and disolate at being nothing more than a tramp, Jos. Miller, aged 25 years, home wherever he chanced to place his head, tried to end his life in the city jail Saturday morning by cutting the arteries of both wrists and cutting his ankles, slashing them in such a manner that it is believed he will die in McAlister hospital where he was removed at once upon discovery of what had happened.

Friday the man was taken to the station by Special Officer Nichols of the E. J. & E., who found him roaming about the yards and, when he refused to leave, he placed him in arrest and took him to the station where he spent the night and it was not until some time later that Assistant Chief Tyrell happened to be walking through the jail and saw a body lying on the floor. Investigating he found the man lying in a large pool of blood and he was semi-conscious.

Investigation showed he had cut his wrists and ankles, slashing them most severely. He was hurried to the hospital where Dr. Brown attended him and states he will likely succumb to the wound.

Nothing is known about Miller for he reported to the officers he had no home. It is believed he is single. When the officer started to take him to the station he made the remark, "God will punish you for putting me in arrest."

Miller is said by the police to be a typical tramp and looks as if he never worked, never cared to work and never would work.

The fact that Miller cut himself as he did and never made a sound to let the other prisoners in the corridor outside the cell in which he passed the night, know what he had done, shows that he never flinched when he began slashing. There was a dozen other men in the jail and not one known what had occurred behind the bars.

School Closes Tuesday with Appropriate Exercises in the Evening

The Antioch school closed its past year's work Tuesday evening with appropriate exercises in the opera house, to which the public had received a cordial invitation. These exercises upon which the teachers in charge had spent much time, labor and thought are generally conceded to have been by far the best of any closing day exercises ever given by the Antioch school. The creditable manner in which each and every number was rendered gave evidence of a most careful and patient preparation, and the size of the audience that attended proved beyond doubt that their efforts were heartily appreciated.

The program was opened by Rev. McNamer pronouncing the invocation. This was followed by the "Sunbonnet Babies" and "Overall Boys" drill by Mrs. Gaggins' pupils which was rendered in most capable manner by the little tots and brought forth a hearty applause. Next came the "Butterfly drill" also by Mrs. Gaggins' pupils, which was one of the prettiest features of the program, and this was followed by the song "Be in Time," which, judging from the various reports, was a motto closely followed throughout the past year. Magdalene Beebe then read a composition entitled "What Makes the Sky Blue" and in it set forth some very interesting ideas. The "Bouquet of Daisies" drill by Miss Lux's pupils was the next number, its special feature being the Maypole dance and was rendered in a most pleasing and graceful manner. Lillian Horton then gave an essay on "The Beauties of Nature," and immediately following the Zu Zu's made their appearance in appropriate costumes and with their clever antics amused the audience for some time. The "Little Maidens from Japan" then gave a song in their sedate and timed manner. The next number was the "Baby Show at Pineville" by Miss Williams' class, was in many respects the same as might be expected in real life. The next was a vocal solo by Stewart Smith, which was greatly appreciated by the audience. The closing number was a duet by Hester Beebe and Veta Manly.

During the evening Mr. Hodge took occasion to compliment the retiring teachers on their past work and to express a regret that they were not to return to the work. That the past year has been one of the most successful in the history of the school is clearly proven by the general air of harmony that has prevailed both among the scholars and the teachers, and the ease with which the year's work was covered as well as the high markings attained at its close. Mr. Hodge who has so capably discharged his duties as principal is the only teacher to remain and his return is hailed with pleasure by scholars and parents alike, as it is generally felt that his calm judgment and cool calculation will go far toward making the coming year, as successful as the past. While it is regretted that the other teachers are not to return their successors may be sure of receiving the hearty support of the patrons of the school and will beyond question meet with the same success and general satisfaction.

ALBERT SNELL GRACE'S BROTHER DIES IN POVERTY

Albert J. Snell, son of Amos J. Snell, millionaire who was murdered in his home in Washington boulevard in 1888, was found dead in bed Tuesday in a cheap rooming house on Clark street in Chicago.

Snell was 50 years old. He had lived at the rooming house a little more than a year.

Snell was a brother of Mrs. Grace Snell-Coffin-Walker-Coffin - Layman-Love of Antioch, known as the most married and divorced woman in the United States. She has been notified of the death and asked to take charge of the funeral arrangements.

The police made a thorough examination of the little room where the man once heir to an enormous fortune, met death in obscurity. They were unable, however, to discover any clue that indicate whether he committed suicide, was murdered, or died of natural causes.

The death of Snell recalled the sensational murder of his father. The murder, the mystery of which has never been cleared up, was charged to Willie Tascott, a youth of the neighborhood. The millionaire was shot dead, Tascott disappeared. He was never captured, although he was reported to have been in numerous cities in all parts of the country.

YOUTH BADLY INJURED

Sam Garwood of Channel Lake Seriously Hurt in Dynamite Explosion

NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH

Furniture and Interior of House Badly Wrecked—Exact Cause of Explosion Remains a Mystery

The experimenting with an electric battery in the hands of Sam Garwood, son of Harmon Garwood is thought to be the cause of the terrific explosion, that occurred at his home at Channel Lake at seven o'clock Monday morning and from which he and his family miraculously escaped with their lives.

Just the exact cause of the explosion is not and probably never will be known but it is supposed that the concussion of a small cap which Garwood had exploded by means of the battery was sufficient to cause the explosion of two dynamite cartridges which had only a short time before been placed upon the chiffonier in the opposite corner of the room.

Suddenly without warning the room seemed to be filled with fire and smoke and the building was shaken with a violence that seemed to tear it from its foundation.

The report of the explosion was heard for quite a distance and neighbors seeing the volume of smoke issuing from the house rushed to the place to find the family alive but in a somewhat dazed condition.

Mr. Garwood appeared to be quite badly injured and was immediately removed to the home of Lincoln Garwood, a short distance away and two physicians were hastily summoned. Upon examination it was found that the shock had rendered him perfectly deaf, that his face neck and arms were considerably cut and bruised and his eyes were badly burned. The extent of the injury to his eyes can not as yet be ascertained but the attending physician extends the hope of saving the sight of one while he expresses the condition of the other as being doubtful. The patient's hearing however slowly returned as the force of the shock gradually wore away.

The building was badly damaged the windows were blown out, the doors torn from the hinges, the partitions rickety, a hole was torn through the outside wall and practically all of the plaster was shaken off. The furniture in the room where the explosion occurred was completely demolished especially the chiffonier which was literally blown to splinters.

That the family escaped with their lives is indeed miraculous. Mrs. Garwood was in an adjoining room at the time and unhurt except a severe shaking up, and the little girl who was about half way down the stairs was also uninjured although the stair door was blown down and the three lower steps were completely blown out.

AGED MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

After being sick most of the past winter and feeling very disheartened because of it, Mr. Neville, one of the best known old residents of Waukegan, Sunday took a dose of paris green at his home in the village and his death occurred a few hours later, after night fall.

The fact that his son shot and killed himself a few years ago at Grayslake adds sorrow to the sad ending of the aged man who was close to eighty years of age.

Mr. Neville had been sick for many months and only recently had been able to get out. Sunday he had been out around his home and returned to it as if nothing out of the ordinary had entered his mind, but, shortly afterwards, his aged wife found that he had taken something which made him sick and he then admitted he had fired of life and had taken the poison.

Efforts were made to save his life but the dose was too severe and all efforts proved futile.

Mr. Neville leaves the following well known children; Mrs. Carr wife of editor Carr of the Waukegan Leader, Mrs. Goding, wife of Dr. Goding of Libertyville, Mrs. Johnson of Nunda, and a son in Grayslake.

SYNOPSIS.

Andy Meelen, aged and eccentric millionaire, is dying and orders his attorney to draw up a will leaving all his property to the son of a sister from whom he was separated years before and of whose name even he is ignorant. Andy tells the attorney that he was married in his youth, but left his wife after a quarrel in which he struck her. He learned afterward that she and his daughter were dead.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

"Well, that's our right. The money came out of old Nevada; let her have it back again. But mind you, Corboy, not till you've raked all creation with a fine-tooth comb to find Mattie's boy."

"Whom will you name as executors or trustees?"

"Must you have 'em?" Meelen answered anxiously, as though the functionaries referred to were of a species anxious and undesirable.

"Undoubtedly; they are necessary evils."

Meelen frowned in perplexity. It seemed as though it were costing him far more trouble to leave his money behind him than it had been to amass it and guard it during his eventful life.

"Can't you fellows act?" he inquired dubiously at length—"you fellows"—indicating Mr. Corboy and his partners.

"Certainly, if you wish it. Two will be sufficient. Suppose we say Mr. Passavant and myself?"

With a gesture as of one wearied with the whole subject Meelen signified assent. Then, as the lawyer rose to go indoors, he said:

"Fix it up quick, Corboy, I'm mortal tired!"

By this time the sun had set behind the western wall of mountains, and Evan appeared to wheel his master within. But the tough old fellow demurred. Half his nights had been spent in the open air with only the starry canopy for a tent. Now that the end was near, he dreaded the cribbed and cabined confinement of four walls. So a lantern was brought and hung to the rafters of the porch, where its dim radiance could not interfere with that piercing gaze which to the last roamed lovingly over the mountain prospect.

One, two hours passed, and save for the steady, harshly rhythmic "crunch-crunch" of the "stamps" the town below was strangely quiet. Every soul therein knew that the master-mind in the hillside crypt was passing away; hushed were the usual sounds of rude revelry and "wide-open" license. It was felt to be a fateful night for the town of Meelen.

At length Mr. Corboy's task was done. A table was carried on to the porch; by lantern-light the will was read to the testator, who turned his eyes to meet those of the lawyer in mute approval when the reading was ended. Then, lifted and supported by old Evan, he affixed his uncouth and sprawling signature, the witnesses followed, and the deed was done which bequeathed a princely fortune and a royal revenue to—whom?

Next morning Andrew Meelen was found lifeless in bed, his gnarled and knotted features composed in a peaceful, almost ecstatic, smile.

"Perhaps he has found Minnie!" mused the lawyer, with hamid eyes, as he stood by the side of his strange client.

CHAPTER II.

In an old-fashioned sitting room in an antiquated brick house in that unfashionable quarter of "downtown" New York formerly known as Greenwich Village there sat, one autumn evening, a young couple, both of whom were exceedingly good to look upon.

To the judicious observer it would have been apparent from their attitude and bearing each towards the other that they were something more than mere friends, yet less than man and wife. In fact, they were contented and happy dwellers in that delectable border-land known as Being Engaged.

The girl was fairly tall of stature, bristling as to complexion, with a wealth of fine and glossy dark hair which rippled and waved around a small but shapely head and above a witelingly feminine forehead, white and broad and low. Her eyes were of a very steadfast dark gray, set widely apart, giving one the impression of quiet repose and cool judgment. A firm chin, above a strong and supple throat made her look older and more womanly than her years really warranted. She was busied with one of those trifles of needlework which keep the fingers busy without curbing one's tongue, and at the same time serve to display to admiring and even coquettish advantage a very shapely wrist and hand. Yet even the dearest of her feminine friends would never have insinuated that Eunice Trevecca was the least bit of a coquette. Indeed, it needed but a glance into the depths of those quiet gray eyes to convince you that that here was a nature tender and true as that of the Douglas himself.

So at least thought young Wilfrid Stennis, who sat opposite to her, and who certainly enjoyed the best opportunities in the world for knowing. He was a pleasant, wholesome lad, fair and florid, with light golden-brown hair and mustache, slim and with slightly stooped shoulders. A rather weak face on the whole, one might say, though perhaps this was partly owing to a rather querulous droop of the mustache, which barely veiled the sensitive mouth; a beard would better have hidden a chin which was far too pretty for any mere man.

Had you guessed him to be a clerk or a bookkeeper you would not have been far astray—one of those men who make exceedingly valuable and faithful servants but very poor masters. As to character, he was neither better nor worse than thousands of other youngsters who start out in life in some downtown office or store at $3 a week, the goal of whose ambition is to earn fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars a year, to marry some pleasant girl, settle down in a Harlem flat or a little one-of-a-kind house over in Brooklyn, raise a small family, get along on a couple of new suits of clothes each year, with a semi-occasional visit to the theater in winter and an outing on Saturday afternoons at Coney Island or Rockaway.

Not a wildly hilarious or thrilling existence, it may be granted, yet there are hundreds and thousands of such men—gentlemanly and refined, neither very strong nor very weak, not vicious nor conspicuously virtuous, but who, in a paraphrase of the old Shorter Catechism, are plausibly or mechanically "doing their duty in that state of life to which it has pleased the Almighty to call them." It is of kindred stuff that the "average citizen" is made.

Even to such men strange dreams may come—faded and foolish visions of wealth and power, hopeless of realization, mayhap, yet nevertheless frequently prompted by certain innate or inherited cravings for the good things of this life which only money can procure, and for the enjoyment of which they feel a yearning and an insatiable capacity if only they had the chance.

"Oh, it's a splendid thing to be rich!" Wilfrid was even then saying to Eunice. "Just think of what a man could do if he were really in possession of money!"

Even to such men strange dreams may come—faded and foolish visions of wealth and power, hopeless of realization, mayhap, yet nevertheless frequently prompted by certain innate or inherited cravings for the good things of this life which only money can procure, and for the enjoyment of which they feel a yearning and an insatiable capacity if only they had the chance.

"Oh, it's a splendid thing to be rich!"

slon of more money that he knew how to spend! I don't mean a paltry hundred thousand dollars, but—well, say twenty or thirty or even fifty millions!

"Why stop there?" put in Eunice with a quizzical little smile. "Why not say a hundred millions at once and be certain of having enough?"

"Because for practical purposes twenty millions would be ample," said he. "The income from that should be—let me see—doing a rapid sum in mental arithmetic—over half a million a year."

"Well, and what would you do with it, Wilfrid, if you had it?" questioned Eunice, looking to humor his fancy.

Wilfrid drew a long breath and lay back in his chair. "In the first place, I'd build me a city house right here in New York on the east side of the park or else at Riverside, and a country place somewhere up the sound or on Long Island near the water. I'd want to live in the city not more than three or four months in the year. Then I'd have a yacht—none of your smoky, greasy tankettes, but a sweet-smelling, fast-sailing schooner fit to go around the world—and I'd sail her myself, too. There would be horses for riding and driving, with perhaps a four-in-hand coach. Best of all, I could travel—south in winter, of course, but I'd see the world: London, Paris, Berlin, Italy, the pictures, the statues, and the libraries. Oh, I'd go everywhere and do everything, even to a little gaming at Monte Carlo! nothing wicked or vulgar about it all, you know, but the utmost enjoyment in a refined way, and all the experience that money could give."

The girl smiled at his boyish enthusiasm, nor did she evince any plique or annoyance because Eunice Trevecca was somehow left out of the picture. "It was all mere idle talk, of course," Wilfrid was not really unhappy or discontented; he had a good position with one hundred a year, and they were to be married in the spring.

"You certainly could give some of our American nabobs a few lessons on how to be happy though rich," she smilingly commented. "It has often seemed to me that our really rich men do not get half as much out of life as they might."

"Of course they don't!" assented Wilfrid dogmatically. "Why, look at me," he rambled on; "I'm only half-baked; never had any education to speak of; had to keep my nose to the grindstone all my life; as you know, there were always two ways for every dollar to go as long as mother was alive, on account of her many years of hopeless illness; but in spite of my few opportunities, I'll bet I could show some of those fellows how to enjoy their wealth!"

"Of course you could," Eunice agreed with a loving woman's fatuous fondness and indulgence for the man she has promised to marry. "But we'll be just as happy without the money, won't we, Wilfrid?"

"Not a doubt of it!" he exclaimed, starting to her side, bending over her and pressing his lips to her shining curls of hair. "Why, possessing you and your love, dearest, I'm the richest fellow in New York today."

She tilted back her head to look into his eyes as he gazed fondly down into hers.

"That's the way I love to hear you speak," she murmured. "Money cannot buy some things in this world, Wilfrid, a trulism which was sealed in a very expressive and satisfactory manner by the naturally ardent Wilfrid."

Eunice, though very well educated and refined—In England she would have been described as "quite above her station, my dear"—was only one remove from being a working woman herself, and had no foolish or impractical longings. As housekeeper for her stepfather, John Trevecca—her mother she could not remember—she was beyond the necessity of earning her own living; but Trevecca himself was but a foreman in some iron works up on Tenth avenue. So to Eunice the prospect of marrying so presentable a young fellow as Wilfrid Stennis, both of them being very much in love with each other, seemed the ome of good fortune, leaving nothing to be desired of the Fates.

And though Wilfrid was her senior by some four years—he was twenty-eight—the girl was really the elder in point of steady principle and cool, sober judgment. In fact, Wilfrid, as she often acknowledged to herself, was rather boyish, sanguine, mercurial, easily led. But she loved him for these very qualities; some women mother their husbands before the children arrive to keep their affections busy.

When old John Trevecca came in, content and bringling with him a strong aroma of cat Cavendish, for he had been smoking his pipe with some cronies on the "front porch," as they still call the house entrance up Greenwich way, the light of Wilfrid's rosy visions had not yet died out of his eyes. There was even an atmosphere of suppressed excitement in the homey room which caused the old man to look shrewdly at Eunice. If there were anything amiss between the lovers Trevecca knew he would find it in the girl's face. But apparently all was serene.

"Wilfrid has been telling me what he intends to do with all his money when he gets to be very rich," she said smilingly.

"That's easy spending," said Trevecca, sinking heavily into a chair. "There's more money got rid of that way in a year than'd pave 'I' York w' dollars! But let's hear about it, lad," he added.

"Oh, it was just foolish talk," said Wilfrid, on whose late enthusiasm the blunt words of his prospective father-in-law were like a bucket of cold water on a bonfire.

Nevertheless, as he walked home to his lodgings on Washington square the exaltation of the earlier evening still clung to him, and as he swung along in the clear, crisp autumn night his step was jaunty, his head held high, and he was potentially as rich as he was actually poor.

To such a man as Wilfrid Stennis, uneducated as the college world counts learning, but eager, receptive, possessing an eye for beauty and for color, with a love for music, an unformed, omnivorous appetite for books, and an instinctive shrinking from the sordid and the mean, the bonds of over respectable poverty are apt to prove especially galling. Like Bella Wilfer, he realized to the full what it meant to be "beastly poor, miserably poor."

What wonder, then, that his longings, his aspirations, his day dreams, were centered about that wealth he so often saw others abusing, or mistaking, or keeping naphkin-dead? Not for the miser's greed of possession, but for the gratification of the best that was in him, did he long for money—hoards and hoards of it.

Overnight day dreams, fortunately, come cheap, and they leave no dark brown taste in the mouth. The next morning, when Wilfrid Stennis went downtown to the Front street store, he was again the prosaic and methodical young entry clerk. No one would have suspected him of secret yearnings for fast horses, a faster yacht, and a little flutter around the tables so hospitably maintained by the prince of Monaco.

Boxes Divided In Church.

The separation of the sexes seems to have been formerly by no means an uncommon practice in the Church of England. In fact, Edward VI.'s prayer book specially mentions that the communion service "the men shall tarry on one side and the women on the other." The papers of a church in Westmoreland include elaborate directions for the division of the sexes at its services.

Give your children pretty names; there are more than enough ugly ones already.

"Put One Over" on General Grant

HAT General Grant was a man of big heart, possessed of warm sympathy for the boys in the ranks, was impressed upon a well-known veteran when he met Grant near Vicksburg under rather embarrassing conditions. He was in General Hovey's old regiment, the Twenty-fourth Indiana, from June, 1861, until August, 1864.

"The stage of the great war drama had been shifted to Vicksburg and vicinity," said the veteran in relating his story. "On April 28, at Hard Times Landing, thirty-five miles below Vicksburg, I saw General Grant, Governor Dick Yates and Fred Grant (then a boy, apparently only thirteen or fourteen years of age, but wearing a captain's shoulder straps) board a tug and cross the river. The cannonading between our fleet and the forts was terrific, and I could see the cannon balls come skimming along on the water, some of them very near to General Grant's tug, but he stood calmly on deck, not in the least disturbed. The next day I crossed the river on the flagship Benton and stood within six feet of Grant for three hours. He chewed an unlighted cigar stub all the time. I saw him no more until about May 8.

"Several comrades induced me to go foraging with them. We knew we were in the enemy's country, surrounded by an army 25,000 stronger than ours, but we decided to take the risk for a square meal. The day was cloudy and dark and finally we lost our bearings. But we had a few chickens, some sweet potatoes, peas and a duck or two, and so really did not worry over the situation. When we were at last picked up by a patrol guard of our own army we were so relieved at not falling into the hands of the enemy that we did not take our predicament seriously. It was when the guard took us to General Grant's own headquarters a short distance away that we saw we had but stepped out of the frying pan into the fire. We knew Grant was a good disciplinarian and we had broken the rules.

"General Grant was not in his tent at first, but soon came. He threw his bridle reins to an orderly and strode into his tent, giving us rather a curious glance as he went by. In a few minutes he came out again and asked us what we were doing there. Our spokesman glibly manufactured a tale about a sick brother being weak and badly in need of better food than hardtack on which to regain his strength. It was at once evident that General Grant's sympathy had been aroused.

"Then he proceeded to tell us that he would forego punishment, in view of the cause that had led us to go foraging, but he asked us to promise that we would never again be guilty of such an act. He said that we were in the enemy's country and did not know at what hour he would have to order the army to move. He said he knew we were short of rations, but that he had sixteen boats loaded down with provisions waiting for us just above Vicksburg. He said he would get to them soon if all his plans to dislodge and rout the enemy succeeded.

"You can bet we went away with some new ideas about Grant. His talk was our salvation, for General Hovey was fully determined to make an example of us and he heard General Grant had ordered us back to our company. That 'sick brother' story would not have done to tell General Hovey."

Debt Owed to Boys in Blue.

It is, perhaps, difficult for many of the present generation to appreciate the nation's obligations to the boys in blue. But for them we should have no union, and slavery would stain our civilization. This nation can never repay the debt it owes to these brave men, but it must never let the story of their heroic deeds perish from the annals of mankind or the memory of the generations yet to come.

The Dwindling Line.

The Grand Army of the Republic has passed the point where it can gain in numbers, and every year cuts down its total. No American who watches the parade at an annual encampment can fail to draw inspiration from the patriotism for which these men stand, nor can he fail to be saddened by the thought that fewer remain each time to carry on the work.

U. S. LOST MILLIONS

SPITZER, PARDONED BY TAFT, REVEALS SECRETS OF SUGAR FRAUDS.

BIG SURPRISE IS SPRUNG.

Prosecution Plays Trump Card—Protest by Defense That Witness Could Not Testify Under Law Is Followed by Sensation.

New York.—When Prosecutor Simpson called to the witness stand Monday Oliver Spitzer, superintendent of the Williamsburg docks, who some months ago was convicted of underweighing and sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary, the government played its trump card in the prosecution of Charles R. Helke, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, charged with being implicated in the sugar trust underweighing conspiracy.

Spitzer demonstrated to the court the working of the fraudulent devices by which the government was cheated out of millions of dollars by false weights, it is alleged.

When Spitzer took the stand John B. Stanchfield, for the defense, claimed that under the federal statute Spitzer, as a convicted man, could not testify.

The sensation of the trial was then created by the declaration in court that Spitzer had been pardoned by President Taft on May 19 last.

Helke is on trial in the United States circuit court with five former employees of the American Sugar Refining company on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government by underweighing cargoes of sugar imports. Witnesses have testified to the discovery of fraudulent devices on the sugar docks at Williamsburg, where, it was alleged, employees of the so-called sugar trust manipulated the scales so as to bring about underweights.

Spitzer went back to the years 1894 and 1895 when, he said, an investigation he made developed the fact that the checkers were affecting the weights of raw sugar by placing small bags of lead on the beams of the scales, causing the recorded weights to drop below the actual, often as much as 40 pounds on each draft.

In addition, Spitzer said it was also the practice to stuff paper underneath the floors of the scales for the same purpose. He said that when Deputy Surveyor Vail took office these devices were abandoned and the use of the steel corset spring instead was begun and continued.

UNEARTH BIG GRAIN SWINDLE

Chicago Firm Loses $700,000 by Manipulation of Conspirators, Who Juggled Bills of Lading.

Chicago.—Juggling of warehouse receipts and railroad bills of lading, used in connection with the business of Durant & Elmore, grain operators, with offices in Chicago and Albany, N. Y., have caused the loss of $700,000, according to reports from the eastern city Monday. Conspirators within the firm and outside accomplices are blamed for the alleged misappropriation, which involves, it is said, only the officials of the eastern branch. Edwin W. Elmore, vice-president of the firm and head of the Chicago office, departed for Albany last Friday in response to a telegram and still is there.

Money was obtained from banks in Albany and New York, it is said, on jaggled receipts and bills, and the institutions reported as swindled are declared to be conducting an investigation seeking to place responsibility and to discover the exact amount of the discrepancy. Gibson Oliver, treasurer of the grain concern and manager of its Albany office, is reported to have made a statement of responsibility in connection with the alleged misappropriation and to have named Henry C. Palmer, a former employee of the Delaware & Hudson railway, and later engaged in the Chicago office of the grain house.

Naval Bill Passes Senate.

Washington.—By the decisive vote of 35 to 26 the senate Monday approved the two-battleship program which has already gone through the house. Both of the new ships will be of the Dreadnaught class, and the most powerful fighting machines in the world. In addition, the senate added a provision to the bill for one submarine boat and six torpedo boat destroyers, none of which were provided for in the bill as it passed the house. As the bill goes to conference, it provides for two battleships, to cost not exceeding $6,000,000 exclusive of armament; two fleet colliders to cost not more than $1,000,000 each; five submarine torpedo boats at a total cost of not more than $2,500,000, and six torpedo boat destroyers, to cost not more than $750,000 each.

Police Prevent Lynching.

Atlanta, Ga.—Incensed because three of their race had been wounded as the result of a pistol duel between two negroes, 500 inhabitants of the negro section of Atlanta Monday attacked one of the duellists and were about to lynch him when they were dispersed by the police.

Science Hall Burned.

Albuquerque, N. M.—Hendley hall, the science department of the University of Mexico, was destroyed by fire Monday. Loss $100,000.

A SOLDIER'S EXPERIENCE.

Hardships of Army Life Brought On a Severe Case of Kidney Trouble.

H. N. Camp, 1859 Delaware St., Denver, Colo., says: "During the Spanish-American war, I contracted a severe kidney trouble. After returning home, I was under a physician's care for months, but grew gradually worse. Finally I got so bad I could not hold the urine at all. I also had intense suffering from back pains. Doan's Kidney Pills made improvement from the first, and soon I was well and strong."

Willington to Pay for Rammer. When the British square at the battle of Abu Klea, in the Nubian desert, was penetrated by the dervishes, one of them attempted to spear a gunner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The Briton brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split on the man's hard skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason, and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off with: "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to hear no more of the case."

The Man Invasion. The witch out for a moonlight jaunt on her favorite broomstick, had just escaped being run down by an aeroplane manned by a joy-rider. "Oh, this is simply maddening!" she cried, hysterically; "to think of man invading the one field of which we women have had a monopoly for centuries! And I believe I heard the brute say, as he passed: 'Oh, you old witch!'"

Despising. Little Girl—Mother, that's such a nasty little boy; whenever he passes me he makes a face. Mother—Very rude of him. I hope you don't do it back. Little Girl—Oh, dear, no! I simply turn up my nose and treat him with despatch.

NONE KNEW BETTER

MAJOR HAD HIS INFORMATION AT FIRST HAND.

Position Made Him Logical Head of Bureau of Information as Far as Town's One Hotel Was Concerned.

"Is there a hotel in this town?" inquired the stranger of the tall, stooping person sitting on the baggage truck and swinging his lank legs.

"Sorter," said the latter, briefly; "they call it the Home house."

"Which way is it?" asked the stranger; "pretty fair place?" The resident shook his gray head doubtfully.

"That depends," he said, "you might call it all right, but some don't."

"What's the matter with it?" the traveler inquired; "put me next, will you? Ain't it all right to spend the night?"

"The matter's the major's wife," ex- legs, resting his heels on the truck plained the latter, drawing up his long and clasping a pair of long arms about his pointed knees; "she sorter runs things."

"Well," said the traveler, "I've got to put up somewhere. I guess, if the major's wife can stand me I can stand her, eh?" The man on the truck smiled mournfully.

"I dunno," he said; "she'll ask you things soon as she sees you, an' before supper she'll know if you're married or single; if you have a family; how much salary you make, who you work for, an' if you're a Christian Scientist or not. She always does."

"Pooh!" said the traveler, stoutly, "is that all? Why, I can get along all right with a lady like that." The old man shook his head.

Then he resumed in a sing-song tone: "She'll give you the dumbest supper you ever et, an' if you don't git to bed before nine o'clock she'll carry off the lamp."

"Is that so?" said the traveler; "are the beds all right?"

"Sometimes," admitted the old man; "today, though, the hired man didn't finish washin'—got drunk, an' there ain't a sheet or a towel on the place."

"Must be a pretty sort of hotel," commented the traveler. "Ain't there any other in town?"

"Nary 'nother," said the citizen; "people generally stays away from here whenever they kin."

"Well," said the traveler, "I guess I'll have to tackle the Home house." The old man sat up on the truck.

"If I was you," he said, "I'd set down here on this here truck a spell. The major's wife she ain't feelin' well today. She's got one o' them spells o' hern."

"You seem to know a lot about this hotel," commented the traveler.

"Law, yes," said the old man, mournfully; "you see, I'm the major."—Galveston News.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root. Names of druggists, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HAS FOUNDATION IN ROCK

Remarkable Church in German Town Around Which There Linger Superstitious Tales.

In the quaint old German town of Oberstein an ancient church stands, built in the great rock rising from the river. The front of the building is of stone, but the church itself is hollowed out of the rock and penetrates far into its heart. Tradition says that in the fourteenth century the count of Oberstein, one of the old robber barons, fell deeply in love with a beautiful young lady, the daughter of a neighboring knight. His brother also sought the fair maiden's hand and the two suitors had a violent quarrel. The upset was that the count slung his hapless brother from the top of his castle wall, high up the precipitous cliff. Repenting of his awful deed, the count vowed that he would build a church where his brother's body first touched the ground. He did so, excavating the church in the rock, and tradition goes on to say a miraculous spring of clear water sprang from the crag as a token that Heaven was appeased. This curious church is now the only Protestant place of worship in the town.—Wide World Magazine.

Injurious Concrete Floors.
Opponents of the use of concrete for floors in factories contend that the stonelike surface is injurious to the feet and backs of workmen, and that the dust ground from the concrete finds its way into and injures the machine bearings.

Conundrum.
The latest conundrum is: "What can you fill a barrel weighing ten pounds with and yet make it lighter?" The answer is holes, of course.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through colds, croup, and whooping cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It's a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for coughs, cold, influenza, asthma, hemorrhages, weak lungs. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Surplus Sale—A Bargain Event

Too much stock on hand—that's the verdict of all our department managers. Spring came budding forth so promisingly that our buyers, anticipating a longer and warmer season than usual, more than doubled their orders over any previous year. But the weather man deceived us, for suddenly the delightful spring weather turned to cold, snow and rain. While business kept up to a brisk pace, it naturally fell short of what we had planned, leaving us—as it did thousands of other enterprising merchants throughout the country—with a large surplus stock. The necessity for us to dispose of this surplus accounts for our putting into operation this gigantic sale. The offerings here quoted are without a parallel and form a strong and persuasive argument why you should supply your spring and summer needs during the next few days.

THE ANTIOCH NEWS.
ANTIOCH, ILLINOIS.

A REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
A. B. JOHNSON, Editor and Proprietor

By Mail, One Dollar per Year, in Advance

Telephone, Antioch No. 581.

THURSDAY, MAY 26, 1910

Voliva offers $750,000 for Zion City or part of it thereof. Why doesn't he buy the 94th ward in Libertyville.

Yes, gentle Annie, the May flowers are here, but that doesn't mean that the Merriam Commission in Chicago has yet placed a wreath upon the marble brow of Mayor Busse.

Congressman Cole of Ohio, a stand patter, was turned down in the Republican primaries. We want to: down "coal" in Illinois—may be we want have a chance if the strike isn't settled before long.

There is a faint suggestion of a rumor that another man is going to be a candidate before the Republican primaries for the state legislature. This one is said to hail from way the south-western end of the county.

Waukegan has again jumped into fame. A resident of that city has been found who is supposed to be related to the new King George of England. The proof is almost indisputable. The name of the party is George.

It is announced that Dr. Cook is going back to discover the North Pole again. If he really wants to redeem himself let him come out to Illinois and discover what good the waterways project is going to do Lake county.

We hope those "dear ones at home" haven't spent that money foolishly, if for no other reason than to justify the late high moral view taken by the venerable and respected Waukegan Gazette. Think of the shock if it went for gee gaws and ribbons.

Under the new primary law the voting in the primaries for the legislative representative is going to be the same as if it were the election, that is the minority plan. You have three votes and you may dispose of them as you wish, all for one or split as you see fit.

A representative in Washington from the great state of Pennsylvania has presented a bill preventing newspapers from printing accounts of prize fights or showing pictures of prize fighters. Which all goes to prove, there is more than one way of saving this glorious Republic.

A perfect juror has been discovered in North Dakota. On preliminary examination he said he never heard of President Taft—thought Roosevelt was some kind of a cough remedy and used newspapers only for the shelves in the pantry. He was born in Indiana, nurtured in Illinois but saved to bloom in that great state of the north-west.

The list of candidates for Lake county offices looms up big. The bigness however lies principally in three spots. There are four candidates for the legislature, four for county clerk and three for treasurer. Only two are in for sheriff while the rest of the offices will go without contest, with the possible exception of superintendent of schools.

State's Attorney Burke, down at Springfield, has got a lead at last and it commences to look like rough house. At least he is going after the furniture in the capitol. He has dug up the fact that a man by the name of Johnson sold desks and chairs for the state's use at an exorbitant price. Don't any body around here dare to spring that old gag "too much Johnson."

The mayors are certainly having their day over in Congressman Lowden's district. The mayor of Freeport was the first to shy his castor into the ring to succeed the retiring Mr. Lowden and now, behold, Mayor Edwards of Dixon has cut in. Galena also has a mayor who is considering his chances. Some day a mayor may run for president—perhaps Gaynor of New York, who knows.

The editorial columns of the Waukegan Sun is growing more fierce every day. In a late issue it discussed favorably in most lurid expletives the question whether moving pictures should be allowed at a church entertainment. Think of the yellow in that. If the Gazette would now come out for still life productions, we surely would have something doing.

The Next Legislative Session

The next meeting of the Illinois legislature is going to be one of the most momentous ever held in the state. In the first instance, there must be an honest and thorough house cleaning as far as any possible suggestion of scandal that may lurk as a hang-over in the next session. The people must be convinced at the start that in the finish there is going to be no possibility for an aftermath like what the Chicago Tribune has found to stir up a smoke. The smoke has by no means convinced us, as yet, that there is all the fire back of it, that the Tribune would have us believe.

But where there is smoke, and there certainly is some smoke, there must be some fire back of it and little or great it is fire.

The confessions that money was received for the senatorial vote and the further allegations of a "jack pot," which to our mind is the more serious thing of the two, are sufficient to make any zealous citizen pause and give notice that he must have some different men to represent him at the state capital. If these confessions are liars it is bad enough for they are only a few—if they tell the truth, there are many more who are grafters and that is worse. So, coming or going we find the stain.

The next legislature must have no stain and we must do our part, in Lake county, to see that a clean man who is neither a liar or a grafter goes for us.

We are fortunate as we believe in not having a man who comes in either of the above categories represent us in the last session. There are other candidates who are contesting his re-election, whom we may be sure are safe. The question for us is who shall we select?

Who is the most capable to ferret out the mysteries of the waterways problem?

Who will go there with the greatest knowledge of the things that will benefit Lake county?

Who will be the man who has got the executive force to bring these things this way?

The representative who can do these things is the one we want. He must first be ready as aforesaid to clean house; then to take care of the waterways; and last but by no means least, from our point of view, look out for Lake county.

Who fills the bill?

A Man Wants To Die.

ASSAIL TARIFF ACT

CONGRESSMEN CLARK AND FOSS (MASS.) DENOUNCE PAYNE-ALDRICH LAW.

MISSOURI MAN SCORES TAFT

Republican Leaders Are Flayed—Measure Denounced as "Transparent Humbug" and "Deliberate Bunco Game"—Boutell in Defense.

Washington.—What is regarded as the Democratic keynote speech of the coming congressional campaign was delivered by Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, Democratic leader in the house, Saturday when he denounced the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill as a "transparent humbug," attacked the tariff views of Representative Payne and vigorously assailed President Taft for his support of that law.

Mr. Clark prepared his address with great care and spoke at length, giving facts and figures in support of his contention that the tariff had not been honestly revised and that the Republican majority in congress had endeavored to trick the people.

Representative Foss, the newly elected Democratic representative from Massachusetts, also made a radical attack upon the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

Mr. Foss denounced the Republican policy of protection as an unmitigated evil; flayed the Republican leaders; declared the recent revision of the tariff to be "a deliberate bunco game from start to finish;" pronounced in favor of reciprocity, and demanded an "extra session of a new congress" at the earliest opportunity to revise the tariff.

The speaker announced himself as favoring the creation of a tariff commission, but he wanted the commission composed of non-partisan men whose report would be made direct to congress rather than to the president.

Representative Boutell of Illinois, a member of the ways and means committee, delivered a speech, in which he defended and described the effects of the Aldrich tariff law "from the standpoint of the ultimate consumer," as he said.

Criticizing the Democratic tariff attitude against the producers, Mr. Boutell said Democrats in the past had agonized over the producers, but their hearts now were bleeding for the consumers.

Mr. Boutell compared the difference between what given articles cost the American manufacturer to produce and what they cost the ultimate consumer, in order to show the high cost was not due to the tariff.

CHURCH FIGHT IS BREWING

Dr. Roberts Opponents Seek to Oust Him From Presbyterian Office—Holds Two Berths.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The first hint of the movement to oust Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts of Philadelphia from one of his two offices of stated clerk and treasurer of the Presbyterian general assembly, came in the report of the bills and overtures committee, which was presented to the assembly Saturday.

It was stated in this report that 132 presbyteries had voted for a readjustment, while 136 had voted against any attempt to force Doctor Roberts to resign either of his positions. Twenty-seven presbyteries had not voted, the report said.

Though no deductions were made from this vote, it is taken to mean that it depends on Doctor Roberts himself as to whether he resigns the office of treasurer. His opponents claim that the holding of the two offices gives Doctor Roberts too much power in the assembly and in church affairs.

An appeal to Gov. James M. Gillett of California to prevent the holding of the Jeffries-Johnson fight on Independence day was introduced by Rev. F. L. Forbes of Seattle, Wash., and was referred to the committee on bills and overtures. Members of the assembly who oppose the proposed fight will attempt to have the appeal duplicated to President Taft, with a request for federal interference.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS HONOR TAFT

Roosevelt, King George, Diaz and Bryan Are Also Made Life Members.

Washington.—President Taft, Mrs. Taft, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, King George of England, President Diaz of Mexico and William Jennings Bryan were made life members of the World's Sunday School association in the convention here Saturday amid scenes of great enthusiasm.

For each of those so honored $1,000 had to be subscribed, and in the case of Colonel Roosevelt the chairman of the convention by popular demand, limited subscriptions to $1.

The nomination of persons of less public renown continued until $65,000 had been pledged for mission work.

Price Escapes a Trial. Washington.—Theodore H. Price of New York, the "cotton king," indicted here for connection with the cotton leak scandal of 1908, cannot be prosecuted in the District of Columbia, according to a ruling of the Supreme court of the District Friday.

Probe Secrets of Smuggling. Santa Monica, Cal.—Customs officers are investigating reports from the up-coast countries that opium in large quantities is being smuggled into the Santa Monica mountains.

THIEF MAKES $32,000 HAUL

ROBS ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY AT OIL CITY, PA.

Enters Station While Agent Loads Baggage on Train and Gets Away With Fortune.

Oil City, Pa.—Three packages, containing $32,024.24, were stolen from the Pennsylvania depot here Thursday while John J. Truby, the station agent, was loading baggage on to a train.

The Pennsylvania railroad pay car arrived in Oil City and turned over to the day station agent the three packages of money, wrapped in manila paper, which were received for in the name of the Adams Express company. The money was consigned to the treasurer's office of the Pennsylvania railroad in Philadelphia.

The package proved to be too bulky for storage in the small depot safe and Agent Truby placed them under a sack behind the ticket counter, covering them carefully. There was no one in the depot at the time.

When a Buffalo-bound Pennsylvania train pulled into the platform, Truby stopped out on the platform, closing the office door behind him. The door is self-locking. When about 200 feet from the depot office, Truby saw by the light of the station platform lamp that the office door was not closed. Hurrying back, he discovered that the three packages of money were missing.

PRETTY GIRL FOUND DEAD

Murder Is Suspected in Death of Illinois Teacher—Man Companion Held.

Peoria, Ill.—Miss Minnie Adlers, a pretty twenty-three-year-old school teacher of Princeton, Ill., was found dead in her bed at the Metropolitan hotel in this city, with three bullet holes in her body. One had pierced her left lung and the other two her heart.

Her companion, S. T. Easterly of Chillicothe, Ill., a freight conductor for the Santa Fe, had clandestinely met the young woman for a little less than a year and is being detained by the authorities here, although he is not formally charged with murder.

Easterly and Miss Adlers came to Peoria Saturday, registering at the hotel as man and wife. They occupied the same room and, according to the story told by Easterly, the girl spent most of the night in tears.

ACCUSES BROTHER OF MURDER

William Lowe, Upon Being Sentenced to Prison for Train Robbery, "Peaches" on Relative.

St. Louis.—James Lowe was arrested in the federal court shortly after his brother William was sentenced to 43 years in prison for the Glencoe (Mo.) train robbery.

"If you will arrest Jimmy you can get him to tell you his connection with a box car murder in 1896," Bill Lowe told the police.

"Jimmy" testified against brother "Bill" at the trial.

The murder was described as occurring near the river in the Souldard street district of St. Louis.

BALLINGER INQUIRY AT END

LIE PRACTICALLY PASSED ON LAST DAY OF QUIZ.

Glavin's Testimony Regarding Letters Found Among His Effects Sustained by Stenographer.

Washington.—The taking of testimony in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy ended Friday and oral arguments in the case will begin May 27.

The closing testimony was marked by the practical passage of the lie. A. Christensen, who succeeded L. R. Glavin in office, had testified that he never visited the grand jury room in Seattle, where 20 mysteriously missing letters were found in a box containing Glavin's effects. He also swore he did not know Glavin's effects were stored there.

After Attorney Vertrees announced that the defense rested its case, Attorney Brandels called Frank L. Spaulding, stenographer in the office of the chief of field division at Seattle, in rebuttal.

Spaulding swore that he had accompanied Christensen to the grand jury room soon after Glavin's dismissal last September to look for his stenographic note book containing dictation which Commissioner Dennett of the land office had given him. He said he had told Christensen then that the boxes stored in the room belonged to Glavin.

Spaulding also testified that he had carried some papers to the grand jury room and that the missing Cunningham letters might have been among them.

"What I want to know," said Representative Madison, "is, if those letters were carried by you to the grand jury, whether it was by mistake or design on the part of you or Glavin?"

"By mistake, of course," said the witness.

Chairman Nelson read a letter from Secretary Ballinger in response to the request of Mr. Brandels that further search failed to reveal any other letters than those already made public.

BIG ROOSEVELT PARADE OFF

Feature of Welcome to Returning Hunter Is Abandoned Because It Outgrew Itself.

New York.—The carefully planned parade that was to have been a feature of the welcome to Theodore Roosevelt on his return to America is off.

The parade had promised to outshine all previous parades, but it outgrew itself in its very inception and the committee that has charge of the welcome to Mr. Roosevelt has deemed it wise to announce that there will be no parade, other than that in which the reception committee, the rough riders, mounted police and Mr. Roosevelt will form the leading features. The committee Thursday announced that it has decided to restrict the line of paraders that will welcome the returning hunter because the demands for space made such a parade prohibitive.

DR. HYDE SEEKS NEW TRIAL

Physician's Counsel Files Motion to Set Aside the Verdict Returned by Jury.

Kansas City, Mo.—Attorney John H. Lucas, representing Dr. Bennett Clark Hyde, filed a motion to the criminal court to set aside the verdict of the jury which found Doctor Hyde guilty and sentenced him to the penitentiary for life. The motion contained 17 reasons.

Kill Income Tax Measure. Boston.—The federal income tax resolution was killed in the senate by a vote of 23 to 1 and is now dead as far as the Massachusetts legislature is concerned.

Kindness Nets Editor $10,000. Sterling, Ill.—For "kindness rendered" the will of the late Abbie L. Myers bequeaths to Frank Greenleaf of Savanna, Ill., editor of the Journal at that place, the sum of $10,000. He was not a relative of the testator.

WORLD GATHERS AT KING'S BIER

Funeral Ceremonies of Edward VII. Attended by Representatives of All Nations.

THOUSANDS GAZE ON COFFIN

For Three Days Subjects of the Late Monarch View Remains Lying in State—Final Observances at Royal Palace of Windsor.

London, Eng.—With all the pomp and formal observances befitting the obsequies of the ruler of a great nation, King Edward's funeral pangs on May 26 are classed as the most imposing ceremonial in the history of Great Britain's capital.

The streets through which the procession passed were lined with upward of 30,000 picked troops of the British army, and among the mourners were the rulers of every country in Europe, or their representatives. In this assembly ex-President Roosevelt rode as the special envoy of the United States, every honor being accorded America's distinguished representative.

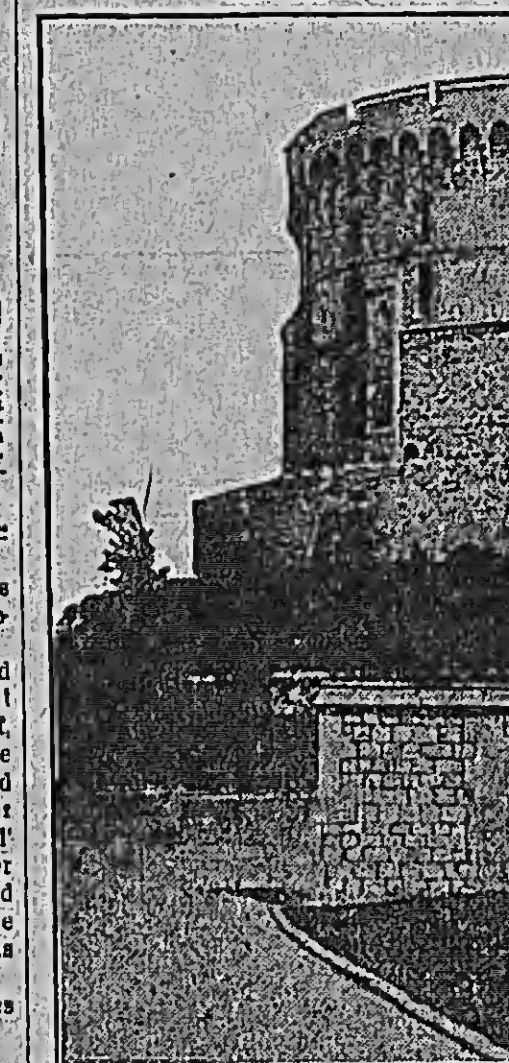

A conservative estimate 700,000 persons passed through Westminster hall to look upon the coffin of the king lying in state. Barriers were built, by means of which the people were ushered through in four lines at the rate of 18,000 an hour. The body of the late king was not exposed to view. The mourners saw only the coffin, with the official regalia and heaps of flowers.

Queen Mother Chose Hymns.

The hymns sung at the service at Windsor were all of the queen mother's choice. They were "My God, My Father, Whom I Stray," "Now the Lord's Work Is O'er," and "I Hear a Voice From Heaven."

Scotland had all its detectives on duty, and these were reinforced by a hundred more from continental cities. All visitors were watched, but there was little real fear of anarchy.

ROUND TOWER OF WINDSOR CASTLE.

From St. George's chapel, the precincts of this palace of the late king Henry was borne to the mausoleum.

attempts, because it was known that every one under surveillance would be deported from England if any trouble were caused on this occasion, and it was not likely that the persons of the anarchist type would give up voluntarily their safest refuge in Europe.

The procession to Westminster hall May 17 for the lying in state was almost on as great a scale as the funeral procession. The cortege included King George and all the foreign sovereigns on horseback, and the queen mother and the royal ladies in carriages.

When the funeral procession started every street car in London came to a standstill for a quarter of an hour. All the public houses in London were closed while the procession was passing.

No Distinction Shown.

There was no distinction as to person there were there any ticket privileges for the lying in state in Westminster hall. All had to take their turn in line.

At St. George's chapel, at Windsor, from whence the body was carried to its final resting place, the carved stalls were removed in order to give place to timber seating. Otherwise not a tenth of those entitled to attend would have been able to enter. The chapel was draped with violet hangings.

Violet was the predominant tone of all the funeral drapings and public decorations, it being well known that King Edward greatly disliked the gleam given by black draperies.

The service held in Westminster abbey did not form any part of the royal funeral. It was a memorial service held especially for those members of the house of lords and house of commons, who were unable to go to Windsor.

Electric standards were fixed around the place in Westminster hall where the catafalque stood. The public was admitted until ten o'clock at night. The catafalque occupied the spot on which Gladstone's catafalque stood. The coffin was sealed and draped, and surmounted by some of the royal regalia and King Edward's field marshal's sword.

The Court at Windsor.

The court removed to Windsor the day before the funeral. The archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by Canon Wilberforce, conducted a short service at Westminster hall on the arrival of the body on May 17. The members of both houses of parliament attended this service.

Kept Away by Kaiser.

Neither M. Loubet, M. Delcasse nor M. Clemenceau formed part of the French mission to attend the funeral of King Edward. Premier Briand intended to go, but also gave up the idea, owing to the fact that Emperor William was there. Under these circumstances the mission was purely formal. It consisted of M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs; General Dalessand, military governor of Paris; Admiral Marquis and an attaché representing President Fallieres.

Ex-President Roosevelt, who was named as special envoy of the United States to attend the funeral of King Edward, was presented to King George soon after his arrival in London. Mr. Roosevelt occupied a place with the visiting monarchs in the funeral procession and attended the burial at Windsor.

Thousands of Dollars in Flowers.

The flowers alone contributed by organizations and individuals represented many thousands of dollars in value. The most elaborate wreath was sent from Windsor, consisting of costly white flowers, interwoven with purple, which is the royal mourning color. The wreaths contributed by private individuals, numbering thousands, were hung on posts in the streets.

Jackies Drew Carriage.

King George being so closely identified with the navy, the naval contingents took a prominent part in the ceremonies. Bluejackets drew the gun carriage to Windsor, as they did the carriage which bore the body of Victoria, although on that occasion they did so because the horses became restive.

A MINISTER'S CONSTIPATION

Rev. Kemp Tells of His Digestive Troubles and How He Overcame Them—You Can Do So Free.

The lack of exercise in a minister's life makes him very prone to constipation—but for that matter, most everybody is constipated now and then. It is the nature of the human system.

Many a ready-made cure for constipation and other ailments, such as indigestion, liver and stomach trouble, and bowels, is at hand. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been used for twenty years, is a sure cure for all these ailments.

Rev. R. A. Kemp of the Indiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says in part:

"For years I have been a victim of constipation and indigestion. I have tried many remedies, but I can certainly recommend Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin."

It can be bought of any druggist at 50 cents or $1 a bottle. If there is anything about your case that you don't understand, write to the doctor. If you have never used this remedy, and would like to try it, send your address and a free sample bottle will be forwarded to your home. Address: Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell Block, Monticello, Ill.

What He Knew. "You can tell me the names of the twelve apostles, Sam?" said the pretty Sunday school teacher one morning. Sam's face fell, and he shifted his weight from one foot to the other. "Can't do it, ma'am," he said, sorrowfully, and then his eyes brightened; "but I can call off all of the plitchees in the langoo teams," he volunteered.—Harper's Magazine.

Minute Measurements.

Because the balance wheels of watches expand and contract with changes of temperature they run slower and faster, according to circumstances. By making them of different kinds of metal, having different degrees of expansion with increase of temperature, the effect of their changes on the running of watches may be almost entirely eliminated. But in dealing with such a problem it is necessary to know the expansibility of the metal employed.

A means of measuring it is furnished by an instrument called a dilatometer, in which a system of delicate levers or a chain of gear wheels magnifies the motion of a pointer over a graduated scale hundreds of times. At a meeting of the Physical Society in London not long ago a dilatometer was exhibited which had a magnification of 1,500 times, so that the change in the length of a piece of steel caused by a single degree of rise or fall of temperature was clearly measured by it.

The Comet's Tail.

The tail of a comet is composed of gas, existing in a highly rarefied condition. Little particles of electricity called corpuscles, or ions, are being constantly given off at enormous speed by the sun. Each meteorite in the comet's head is surrounded by its own rarefied atmosphere. When one of these little ions strikes one of the molecules of gas in the comet's atmosphere, it carries it off with it to form the tail. The electrical charge makes the gas luminous, and it is by this light, and not by reflected sunlight, that the tail is made visible to us. A comet's tail, therefore, seems to be merely a very extended aurora—Century.

SMALL BOY INJURED BY COW AT UNCLE'S FARM

Going into a cow stable on his uncle's farm near Rosecrans, Harold Sumerski, the seven year old son of the secretary of the Lake Forest Ice company, B. J. Sumerski, was bunted in the stomach by a cow and hurled ten feet against a brick wall that formed a side of the barn.

The lad was unconscious when picked up and remained so for four hours at the end of which time he was barely able to mutter "The cow hit me with her head."

The child is still in a critical condition and Dr. B. N. Parmenter of Lake Forest, the family physician makes regular auto trips to the place. The little fellow is kept in ice packs and strong fears that internal injuries of a grave nature may develop.

The boy was making an unaccustomed visit to the farm and had just been given permission to pick out a lamb for his own, and had picked the best in the flock. Right after this he had wandered away from the other children and into the cow barn where the casualty took place. His condition is such that he cannot be removed to his home.

A Regular Tom Boy

was Susie—climbing trees and fences, jumping ditches, whittling, always getting scratches, cuts, sprains, bruises, lumps, burns and scalds. But lawl! Her mother just applied Bucklen's Arnica Salvo and cured her quick. Heals everything—headache—Boils, ulcers, eczema, old sores, corns or piles. Try it. 25c. at J. H. Swans.

Explaining Woman's Progress.

Perhaps one reason the women are forging ahead of the men is that they spend so much time laughing at the manner in which a woman sharpens a pencil.—Arlington Globe.

Disposition of the Confetti.

High and low he searched for the bag of confetti he had brought home on the previous evening for his son and heir, but his efforts were not rewarded with success. Where on earth had he put it? What had become of it? With every minute he became more irate, till finally he rang for Bridget. "Bridget," he exclaimed testily, "did you see that bag of confetti I brought home last night for Freddie?" "Sure, an' 'O' d' d, sorr!" brogued out Bridget. "But 'O' didn't know it was only for Minster Fred. There's but half as it left now." "Only half of it left?" he cried. "What on earth have you done with the rest?" "Cooked it, av course," retorted Bridget; "an' it's for yer own breakfast, with cream, ye had it this mornin'!"

What Our Six

Months' Guarantee

Really Means

Holeproof Hosiery is guaranteed to be as free from holes at the end of six months as it is the day you buy it. We give you this guarantee in writing so if any holes appear in six months you receive new hosiery free of charge.

Common hosiery has no such guarantee. It costs you just as much as "Holeproof," but at the end of six months it is worthless. You spend hours darning it when for no extra expense you can have "Holeproof" and do no mending. Why not have the best?

FAMOUS Holeproof Hosiery FOR MEN, WOMEN, AND CHILDREN

Insist on seeing the original Holeproof trade-mark. Many have imitated the guarantee but none have equalled the quality.

The makers pay 63 cents a pound for Egyptian and Sea Island cotton, but common hosiery is made from cotton at 12 cents a pound.

"Holeproof" uses 3-ply yarn in the body and 6-ply in the heels, toes and knees. Ordinary hosiery uses 2-ply throughout, yet costs you just as much as "Holeproof."

Stop in at our store and examine the hose. See how stylish and comfortable it is—soft, smooth and neat fitting. Learn the facts today.
